

Amoveo Newsletter 2007 # 4 ■ Wise Move

It's been an exciting year at Amoveo with the launch of a number of new products and our expansion throughout Australia, Papua New Guinea, New Zealand, South Africa and even parts of Europe!

Our office and storage products are being introduced to RSEA's national retail stores. The opportunity to display and sell our products through RSEA stockists ensures that our products become accessible to a much wider national customer base.

We've continued to consolidate our strength as one of the leading providers of modular units with an emphasis on a complete solution – both in terms of a wide product range and our ability to organise all the design, certification and installation elements of a modular site.

By working closely with industry leaders in 2007 we've found that our products are truly versatile. We now provide power generator enclosures, modular and scalable sewage treatment plants, portable fuel handling facilities and remote communications.

Our products are: cost-effective, easily transportable, flexible in design and our manufacturing capacity means we can have units on site and installed quickly.

And, the need for our modular solutions is stronger than ever - this is reflected in the housing shortage crisis, lack of adequate Indigenous housing solutions and the many challenges of building in remote areas.

We'd like to wish you a pleasant Christmas and New Year period.

Our resolution for 2008 is to keep finding innovative ways to solve our Customer's needs.

Once again, happy holidays!

Regards,

from the team at Amoveo
